ADDED TRACK LINE ON L. & N. DOUBLES ITS TONNAGE HAUL

Double Track on Reduced Grade From Baileys To Wallsend Biggest Benefit Ever To Coal People Here.

WIL LTAKE CARE OF ALL COAL BUSINESS NOW

The Louisville and Nashville railroad has authorized the building of a double track road from Baileys to Wallsend, a distance of 167 miles, construction to start immediately. This addition will cost about $2,000,000, and, built on a reduced grade, will enable the Cumberland Valley division to increase its tonnage haul per train 100 per cent

This is the biggest benefit to the coal people of this section of any single thing ever done. O. B. Hollingsworth, division superintendent, said yesterday. If cars can be supplied, he continued, all the coal produced in the mines of this territory can be taken care of by the Cumberland Valley division.

This road will be constructed so that no where will there be more than a three-tenths grade against a load. That is the same plan as the Harlan line from Acosta to Clover Fork, Martin's Fork and Lynch. This division has always been hampered by the condition o fthe road between Baileys just the other side of Barbourville, and Wallsend, and when the other part of the division could handle its coal satisfactorily. this end has never been able to serve the coal business with 100 per cent efficiency. The double track on reduced grade will double the service of this line.

COAL RETAILERS PROTEST STRIKE OF CONSUMERS

Insist Coal Can Not Be Mined For Any Less—Governor Says High Cost Due To Abnormal Demand and Car Shortage.

DEALERS MEET IN CONFERENCE AT LOUISVILLE TODAY

By Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Oct. 5.—Kentucky retail coal dealers are fighting a buyers strike, according to R A. Watson, Louisville president of the Kentucky Retail Coal Dealers Association. Governor Morrow, however, in addressing the meeting said present high coal prices are due to abnormal demand. He asserted when the coal car supply is increased prices are "bound to come down." If prices are not lowered, he said when the car supply is increased, "then something must be done"

After routine matters were attended to the meeting was turned over to Mr. Hutchens who talked for half an hour in a very interesting manner on what the safety movement stood for, the benefits to be derived from it, not only by the employing companies but also by the employees, how lives have been saved by the Prone Pressure Method of Resuscitation from an electric shock, when even the physicians had given up the electric shocked persons for dead. He stressed the importance of being careful on the new work now being instituted by the K. U Co. in this district, and wound up by relating two stories of peraticular application to electric employment.

Mr. Watt stated that he wanted also to lay stress on the new work now being done, in order that it might be completed without accident or injury to any one employed on it.

J. BARNES, GIANT'S PITCHER

ANOTHER WILDCAT MASCOT GIVEN K. U. FOOTBALL TEAM

By Associated Press

Lexington, Sept. 5.—T. N. T. the new Kentucky football team, has made his first bow on the gridiron. He parried contentedly during the preparatory work, and growled during the scrimmage but seemed satisfied with the progress the team was making.

The cat was somewhat abashed on his first appearance before such a large crowd, but soon became accustomed to the noise and contentedly he watched the football squad at work.

T. N. T, arrived only the other day to become first assistant to Tom, also a wildcat, as mascot to the Blue and White. He was caught in a steel trap by Virgil Johnson, a sophomore in the Engineering College in the foothills of the Cumberland Mountains of Tennessee. Johnson had decided that the University needed another mascot, and hearing of the wildcat, set a trap for him. When Johnson returned to school he brought the cat with him The Suky Circle, booster organization of the university, adopted the animal and christened him T. N. T.

Tom, Jr., will be on the field at every game, assisting Big Tom in putting pep and fire into the Wildcats. A report has been circulated that he will be tied to the opposing team's goal post to prevent the opponents from crossing.

FAVORS BUS OPERATION AS ADJUNCT TO ELECTRICS

By Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 5.—That the bus has a place in light traffic but that it should be operated by electric railway managements as an adjunct to their regular service and not as a competitive agency, was the report brought to the convention of the American Electric Railway association here today, prepared by a committee composed in part of bus owners of a year ago.

Operated by electric railways, buses will supply regular, responsible service, the report stated. Mass transportation cannot be handled by buses as cheaply as it can by electric cars, but in cases of light traffic, the bus sometimes is more economical

However, where traffic is so light that the higher cost per passenger of operating the bus is offset by the relatively high fixed charges per passenger with such light traffic which results from the electric railways investment in track, a field is created in which the railless vehicle can furnish satisfactory alike in operation and economy. The possibility of utilizing the motor bus or tracless trolley therefore should be kept in mind by electric railway operators.

The committee reported that the fly by night jitney and other irregular forms of gas engine transportation had not been considered in the study of the transportation and that transportation by electric railways should not affect them adversely if intelligently carried out.

NEGRO CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH HERE LAST NIGHT

Ermine Bell, 12, Goes Back in House To Rescue Little Brother and Both Perish in Fire Back of Furnace.

MOTHER RETURNS WHEN FIRE IS AT HEIGHT

Two negro children, Ermine Bell, 12, and Tyler Bell, 7, were burned to death last night in a fire that destroyed Huston Ewing's house back of the furnace where the ywere staying. The little girl, Ermine, was rescued from the fire but went back into the house to save her brother and both perished while the crowd outside stood helpless to save them.

The fire department was notified of the fire about 9:30 and went to the place. However, the closest fireplug was 1500 feet away and there was not even a hydrant closer than 1200 feet. Charles Yeary, acting as fire chief in the absence of Richard Knipp, and his firemen succeeded, with fire extinguishers, in keeping the house next door belonging to Henry Jones, from catching on fire.

Ermine and Tyler Bell were the children of Mrs. Annie Bell. She had gone to Harlan to spend the day and left the children at Huston Ewing's. She got in on the 9 o'clock Harlan train just in time to see the fire. She has three other daughters.

The fire is supposed to have started from a lamp which was burning without a flue. The walls were of pasteboard and covered with newspapers, and the whole house was ablaze almost in an instant. Mrs. Ewing threw her two children out of the window and got out herself with two of the Bell children. The little boy, though, was left inside, and Ermine, returning for him, met death with him.

BIG PENALTIES FOR PROHI VIOLATORS

Walter Brazelton Arrested For Selling Liquor on 19th Street—Two Peddlers Taken in Stony Fork.

Several arrests for selling and transporting liquor, made in the last few days, show a renewed effort on the part of officers to prosecute these law violators. The majority of Middlesboro citizens believe that they can not go too far in this line.

Walter Brazelton was arrested again Sunday for selling liquor. He had the liquor in the woodshed back of Jeff Etter's barber shop on Nineteenth street. Brazelton was fined $300, given 60 days in jail and put under $1000 peace bond.

Prior Miller, a peddler from Tennessee, was arrested Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff Cinnamon in Stony Fork Hollow and eight half-gallon fruit jars of liquor, together with his wagon of chickens, eggs and other farm produce, were taken. He was tried yesterday eveing by Magistrate C. G. Smyth, fined $300, given a 30-day jail sentence and made to give $1000 peace bond.

Another wagon with liquor in it was taken last night in Stony Fork and the owner brought to jail here. His trial has not yet been held.

PINEVILLE, Oct. 5.—The Pineville team is working hard this week getting in line for Lebanon Junction Friday afternoon. The team is slowed up somewhat on account of several slight casualties—Abe Isaacs, captain and halfback, has a crippled shoulder but may be able to play. Lebanon Junction, though a small place, has heretofore turned out teams of more than average calibre.

The probable lineup of the Pineville High team is: Backfield, Crooks, T. Carnes, G. Asher, Earl, Isaacs, Hoskins; ends, E. Asher, J. Carnes, F. Smith; tackels, Miracle, Wilson; guards, Green, Rollins, Turpin; center E. Smith or Van Beber.

BE YOUR BEST

If you can't be a pine on the top of a hill
Be a scrub in the valley, but be
The best little scrub by the side of the hill,
Be a bush if you can't be a tree.

If you can't be a bush, be a bit of the grass,
Some highway to happier make,
If you can't be a muskie than just be a bass.
But the liveliest bass in the lake.

We can't all be captains, we've got to be crew.
There's something for all of us here
There's big work to do and there is lesser work to do,
And the task we must do is the near

If you can't be a highway, then just be a trail
If you can't be the sun, be a star
It isn't by size that you win or you fail—
Be the best of whatever you are.

If You Are Well Bred

You never omit making a call of condolence on any friend who is in trouble, but you make that call a brief one.

If you feel you cannot say anything comforting or fear you cannot be composed, it is better to send a note.

CURRENT EVENTS

Simply Told for Little Readers

Outlook In East is Better

The world's eyes are still fixed on the Near East.

This is not a sharply defined region. It means, generally, southeastern Europe, that is the Balkans; and southwestern Asia, particularly Asia Minor.

It is here that fighting between Turkey and Greece developed a situation threatening a big war, with countries much more important than those two involved.

During most of last week, an outbreak of hostilities seemed likely as each day started But at the last moment, the sky again cleared. Now it may fairly be hoped that a peaceful settlement will be reached

You will remember that, a week ago we left Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish leader, in possession of the Asia Minor coast. He was asking the allies to give him Thrace, as far as the Maritza river, together with the cities of Constantinople and Adrianople.

And you will remember that France and Italy seemed to be in favor of giving the Turks what they wanted, but that England was not so

The British said to the Turks

WE SHALL NOT ALLOW YOU TO PASS THROUGH THE NEUTRAL ZONE.

The neutral zone means a strip of land along the straits leading to and past Constantinople. These straits are very important to world trade and because of this, they were placed under the government of all the allied nations together when the war ended.

In order to get into Thrace, the country he claims, Mustapha Kemal Pasha must come across the straits and hence move through neutral zone.

Great Britain at once began sending large numbers of soldiers and battleships to the straits. The soldiers beg n digging trenches and building fortifications at Chanak and on the peninsula of Ismid. The battleships pointed their cannon toward the land where the Turks were, Answering this move Kemal Pasha began to move his soldiers toward the neutral zone.

Presently the two forces were face to face and it was greatly feared a battle would start between them.

But toward the end of the week, a representative from France who had been conferring with Kemal, appeared to have prevailed on the Turkish general to be patient.

Kemal agreed to a meeting with the representatives of all the allies and began some withdrawals of his troops from the places where the danger of trouble was greatest. The meeting probably will take place October 15, and it is hoped an agreement will be reached. The risk of war is not over but the outlook for peace is much improved.

Two Kings Forced to Abdicate

Th trouble in Asia Minor has led to trouble elsewhere.

A revolution has taken place in Greece. King Constantine, ruler of that country, has been forced to abdicate (resign). Prince George, his son has taken his place.

The revolution started after the Greeks had suffered their crushing defeat at the hands of the Turks in Asia Minor. Officers and soldiers were angry because the Greek Army had been beaten. They blamed King Constantine So Lev decided to set up a new government. The king heeded their demands.

The new Greek government says it will make every effort to keep Thrace, its province, out of the hands of the Turks who are trying to take it away from them

It is said Mohammed VI, the sultan of Turkey, has abdicated, too. The report does not come from the Turkish government but it is almost certainly true.

Kemal thought, it appears, that Mohammed was too much under the influence of the allies for Turkey's good and his victory over the Greeks made Kemal a bigger man than the sultan himself.

Abdul Medjid, Mohammed's cousin, is understood to have become sultan.

Bandit Ends His Career

You have read with delight the story of the adventures of Robin Hood, the outlaw. Now you will be interested in reading that a modern and real Robin Hood has just ended his career.

His name is Raisuli. He is a famous bandit who for years has operated in Morocco, a country in North Africa. Many of his traits are similar to those of Robin Hood.

Raisuli has just surrendered to the Spanish government in Morocco and says he will be a law-abiding citizen from now on.

Theodore Roosevelt, then president sent gunboats to Morocco. The sultan, as the ruler of Morocco is called, feared an invasion of his country by the Americans. So he payed the ransom out of his own pocket and Pedicaris was allowed to go home.

Now Raisuli, after a whole lifetime as a bandit, has decided it is better to be an honest man.

Baby's Smile Saves "Hunger Ship" Crew!

PICTURES SHOW MRS. MADGE JANSEN AND THE INFANT 'MARINER"; THE 'FAMINE SHIP' WILLIAM H. JOHNSON, AND PART OF THE CREW.

By Gene Colin

San Francisco, Oct. 4—You can't starve out a ship that is guided by the beacon light of a baby's smile!

That's what seven gaunt and bearded men will tell you, the seven men who made up the crew of the Famine ship, William H. Johnson.

And the story: 123 days of calm and hunger—123 days with nothing but tainted and poisoned food aboard—long, terrible days beneath a merciless tropic sun, with Death constantly looming as the home port.

But there was a tiny mite of life on board; a 6-months-old babe, born on shipboard before the trip became a nightmare cruise. And there was a mother, Mrs. Madge Jansen, wife of the skipper, Captain Nels Jansen, and three children, to whom the sea had long since been a home. It was her sublime faith and courage — that and the tiny life—that held up the morale of weak and dizzy sailormen.

The ship took grub at New Zealand. Then, at sea, it was found to be spoiled. Some of the men were dizzy from eating the food.

And then, say the sailors, we'd see that little shipmate laughing and gurgling all over the deck. We just couldn't quit in that spirit.

So we took to shooting seabirds and caught sharks to fill out the larder.

Port was finally reached.

A baby's smile had saved the crew.

FOURTH CONVENTION OF CHRISTIAN CHURCH

By Associated Press

Burlington, N. C., Oct. 5—The quadrennial general convention of the Christian church, to be attended by delegates from conferences throughout the United States and Canada, will begin here October 17, and continue for ten days, according to announcement by officers of the church. Plans for the activity of the denomination for the next four years will be outlined at the conference.

The commission appointed four years ago to study the work of the forward movement will report at the conference and suggest its recommendations. Eighteen other commissions of eleven persons each also will report on Christian unity, city churches, laymen's work, organization, Christian endeavor, stewardship, life-work recruits, evangelism, home missions, foreign missions, education, ministerial relief, public morals, publicity and literature, rural church, social service and Sunday schools.

The churches' foreign missionary work is confined at Japan and Porto Rico, a number of whom will attend the convention.

Much interest will center in the report of the organization committee, which will recommend ways to improve the organization work of the church, the announcement states.

The denomination has the oldest religious newspaper in the world, the announcement said. It also has colleges at Defiance, Ohio, Elon, N. C., Missouri, Indiana, New York, and a new one being built in Alabama. It also was the first denomination to ordain women to the ministry.

Present officers include the Rev. Frank G. Coffin, Albany, Ore., president and the Rev. J. F. Burnett, Dayton, O., general secretary.

STEEPLEJACK HAS MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM DEATH

By Associated Press

Glasgow, Scotland, October 5.—Glasgow claims to have the luckiest steeplejack in the world. A miraculous escape from death is reported in the case of George Armstrong, who was at work repairing the top of the highest chimney stack in Glasgow. He lost his balance and fell. At the foot of the stack was a water tank protected over the top by iron bar reef apart. Armstrong fell headlong into the tank without touching any of the bars, and sustained only minor injuries.

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR KIDNEYS ACT BADLY

Take tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Drink lots of water.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

A THOUGHT

What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee.—Psalm 56:3.

Fear is more painful to cowardice than death to true courage.—Sir Philip Sidney.

ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY TO REGISTER

Did you fail to register last Tuesday? There are a lot of men and women who did. They were in a hurry or they forgot; or they didn't know where the polls were. If you belong to any of these, or were deterred from registering for any reason, just remember to register on Saturday, October 7. It is the hallmark of good citizenship.

If you do not register, you cannot vote. If you do not vote, you have lost the chief privilege for which you pay taxes. If you do not vote, you have lost the opportunity to help select our city, state and county officials, as well as the officials in Washington.

Every politician will vote; the voters they control will vote; job hunters will vote; the controlled negro men and women will vote. If the majority of citizens, however, fail to cast their ballot there is no reason under the sun why the few professional politicians should not run public affairs as it best suits them to do. We get just as good government as the indifferent majority deserves.

MAN'S RIVAL

A shipment of iron telegraph poles goes to South Africa. Wood is abundant and cheaper, but it would be quickly destroyed by the powerful jaws of the Terrible White Ants.

In Ceylon Black Army Ants march on the warpath. A scientist counts them, finds 300,000 soldiers in one army, marching in companies, about 20 abreast, with officers running up and down the line and keeping order.

Let a horse or man break a leg and fall in the path of the Army Ants, and in a few hours only a skeleton is left.

There are other marvels of the insect world which are described in Professor J. Arthur Thomson's fascinating Outline of Science, a four-volume education without a headache.

Thomson tells about the Burying Beetles. When a corpse is to be buried, one of these insect grave-diggers rounds up a squad of helpers instead of tackling the job alone.

Among locusts the wingless young form a living bridge over a stream until their brothers and sisters cross overhead. They change places, relieving the bridgers, when fatigued, so that few drown.

Certain bees remain in the hive as housekeepers, receive honey as workers bring it in, then store it in the comb-cells. Other bees do their share by standing patiently, fanning the air with their wings to ventilate the hive.

All these manifestations of mutual aid or the social instinct have the rudiments of definite civilizations.

While insects work by instinct and man by intelligence, the two methods are strikingly similar. Man calls it instinct largely because it does not please his vanity to credit any creature except himself with intelligence.

If the insects are intelligent and can communicate with each other, no doubt they have observed the civilization of man and contemptuously referred to it as instinct.

We are important on earth, that is true. But we are only a part of a far more important system of nature. Each thing that lives must exist with a definite purpose.

Will Allen White says, use DAMN in place of very. Very fine in some places but we'll be damned if it always goes.

Tom Sims Says

QUOTATIONS

A printer in Fort Worth got peeved when a doctor asked for bids on a thousand letterheads of different sizes, grades, colors and weights and that the form be kept standing for future use; so he replied in this wise:

"Am in the market for bids on one operation for appendicitis, one-two-five inch incision—with or without ether; also with or without nurse. If appendix is found to be sound, want quotation to include putting same back and canceling order. If removed, successful bidder is expected to hold incision open for about 60 days as I expect to be in the market for an operation for gallstones at that time and want to save the extra cost of cutting."

BERTON BRALEY'S DAILY POEM

THE MIRACLE

BY BERTON BRALEY.

OUT of a reeking tenement she traps.
Dainty and slim and delicately fair;
Her cheeks are rose, and roseleaf are her lips,
She is a flower, grown in tainted air;
You can't believe she could have flourished there,
Where even noon-day sun is in eclipse,
Where grim reality the glamor strips
From all life's dreams and leaves them stark and bare.

YET here she is, a flower, lush and sweet,
That throve, somehow, in rank and fetid soil,
Young maidenhood, with light and lilting feet,
And eyes which disillusion cannot spoil,
And—miracle which few can understand—
There are a million like her in the land!

THE REFEREE

BY ALBERT APPLE.

Blue Laws.

London, England, is elated at Magistrate Cousins' decision that ice cream candy and fruit may be sold on Sundays up to 9:30 at night.

A confectioner had been arrested for keeping his shop open after 8 in the evening.

The arguments in court sounded like a convention of American wets—solemn talk about restrictions of personal liberty.

The case was settled by the magistrate digging up the old Sunday observance law, passed in 1667, a procedure that sounds familiar to any one acquainted with American courts.

Down everywhere usually is more precedent than common sense.

Colors

Do you want a purple tree on your lawn? Or a blue or red? A German chemist perfects a process by which a tree, while growing, can be transformed into any of these three colors. His method is to feed liquid dews to the roots. They rise through the sap cells and color the leaves.

Rather a foolish thing to start circulatig in a world quick to adopt the atrocious. Green is the most beautiful color, also most restful to the eyes. That is why nature uses it in grass, leaves and nearly all vegetation. Imagine the country an endless mass of purple or red or blue!

Flying

Important safety device for airplanes is placed on the market by A. V. Roe & Co. It is a shock-absorber to make landing easy and eliminate bouncing especially on rough ground. If you live 20 more years you will see airplanes settle down as slowly and lightly as a feather, moving a few inches right or left so paint will not be scratched while entering the air garage through the roof.

Censor

People of influence induce the Japanese government to suppress the news about a murder. The Kobe Herald appears with this headline, Terrible Tragedy. Below is a blank space.

You can't imagine it happening in America. And that is the chief reason we have no such autocracy as have the Japanese. Freedom of the people begin with freedom of the press. It also ends when press censorship begins.

Child-Crime

Crime among children is increasing rapidly in Russia, say Bolshevik newspapers. Editorially the Izvestia estimates that Russia has 70,000 professional child criminals. For this, it blames an unprecedented state of neglect.

Holds true in all countries, ours included. Back of nearly all wayward children is neglect by parents. That and poverty. Heredity is a minority cause.

Pets

The average city dweller is not a lover of pets, says Frank D. Hutchins, secretary of the Pet Dealers Association.

He finds foreign born citizens very fond of pets, especially Germans, Irish Scotch and Italians.

The leading demand in the pet business is for pigeons which are selling at $3 to $150 a piece in New York.

It is all very fine to be kind to animals. But a good deal of affection is wasted on pets that should go to humans.

METAL INDUSTRY INCREASES WAGES

By Associated Press

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 5.—The recent 15 per cent increase in wages granted employes of the Copper Range and Quincy mining companies in the Michigan copper district, and the announcement that the Calumet & Hecla and Hohawk and Wolverine companies would shortly readjust wages, is interpreted as an effort on the part of the mining companies to hold together such forces as they now have and add to them if possible.

Men have left the district in considerable numbers during the past few months, due to higher wages obtainable elsewhere. A crippling of mine organizations has resulted, with subsequent higher costs and lessened productions. It has been the history of the district that when one or two companies increased wages the others virtually were forced to follow to maintain general morale.

Mining costs still are high and earnings small. Although surplus copper is still diminishing no substantial improvement in the metal market is expected until next spring. Copper has been selling recently at 14 cents per pound or a fraction under. Present and contemplated wage increases will mean an increase of cost of from 1-2 to one cent a pound. The only way shattered organizations could be revived and their efficiency increased was to raise wages, even though not strictly warranted by the present price for the metal, officials pointed out.

Copper mining companies at the close of the war were left with an abnormal metal surplus. Demand for the metal fell off sharply and the price dropped from 26 cents per pound the war price, to under 12 cents. The majority of the mines reported operating losses, wages were decreased, production decreased, and in the spring of 1921 the Calumet and Hecla and subsidiaries shut down completely. The other companies continues to operate sufficiently only to keep the mines open. Production today is approximately half of normal for the district, estimated at 11,000,000 pounds per month as compared with a pre war, normal of 22,000,000.

40 PER CENT OF WASHINGTON U. STUDENTS SELF SUPPORTING

By Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—Forty per cent of the students body of Washington University is either entirely or partially self supporting, according to a survey made by the committee on recommendations of the school.

The committee also is making a canvass of all students of the university to learn what assistance is needed by students who wish part time employment. The committee is seeking positions for these students in order to help them work their way through college if they wish.

An effort is being made to place women students in homes as companions, governesses or to do housework for their room and board.

The meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Baptist Church held yesterday afternoon observing the Week of Prayer was very profitable and successful in every way. The program rendered on prayer was interesting and beneficial. Splendid talks were made on the subject which were very appealing and helpful. Thirty-five members were present.

The second meeting will be held Thursday afternoon at 1:30 observing Prayer Week. The program of State Missions and special music will be given by the Clifford Hunter and the Ann of Ava Circles. It is urged and very necessary that every member be present. Others interested are invited. Refreshments will be served.

CUBA PREPARING CASE AGAINST H. UPMANN & CO.

By Associated Press

Havana, Oct. 4.—Attention has been called again to an interesting report first circulated last May when the German-Cuban house of H. Upmann & Co., closed its doors, by the provisional conclusions formulated by Fausto Alfonso, prosecuting attorney, against H. Upmann for alleged fraudulent failure.

The states attorney says Mrs Maria Teresa Bances de Marti is not included in the list of those clients of the bank to whom reparation should be made, since she received, before the bank went under control of the federal bank liquidation commission, $130 in jewels and money.

It was reported in May that Mrs. Bances, when first she heards that the Upmann bank was in trouble, went to the Upmann home and by some means or other, the stories vary in particular, secured virtually all the famous diamonds of the banker's wife to guarantee her account. Both are members of Cuba's most noted families.

Another feature of the public prosecutor's findings is the heavy sentence asked for H. Upmann, totalling 26 1-2 years of correctional imprisonment on nine charges of embezzlement, and the payment of an indemnity of $1,547,262.50 to those he is alleged to have defrauded. No date for the Upmann trial has yet been set.

The Flaming Jewel

By Robert W. Chambers

Copyright 1922 by George H. Doran Company

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The lure of the Flaming Jewel, that priceless gem stolen from the royal jewel casket of the

COUNTESS OF ESTHONIA, was drawing a group of clashing and violent spirits to the "hell's kitchen" of the Adirondacks, the disreputable "hotel" owned by MIKE CLINCH.

Here Clinch lived a life of crime surrounded by the riff-raff of the north. The only good influence over him was his beautiful step-daughter,

EVE STRAYER. To give her the education of a lady was the sole passion of Clinch and to do that he would stop at nothing. There arrived at his hotel

JAMES DARRAGH, known to Clinch as

HAL SMITH, who was sworn to restore the Flaming Jewel to the countess from whom it had been stolen by

QUINTANA, the great international thief.

EPISODE TWO

The Ruling Passion

CHAPTER I

Nobody understood how Jose Quintana had slipped through the Secret Service net spread for him at every port.

The United States authorities did not know why Quintana had come to America. They realized merely that he arrived for no good purpose; and they had meant to arrest and hold him for extradition if requested; for deportation as an undesirable alien anyway.

Only two men in America knew that Quintana had come to the United States for the purpose of recovering the famous Flaming Jewel, stolen by him from Grand Duchess Theodorica of Esthonia; and stolen from Quintana, in turn, by a private soldier in an American Forestry Regiment, on leave in Paris. This soldier's name probably was Michael Clinch.

One of the men who knew why Quintana might come to America was James Darragh, recently of the Military Intelligence, but now passing as a hold-up man under the name of Hal Smith, and actually in the employment of Clinch at his disreputable hotel at Star Pond in the North Woods.

The other man who knew why Quintana had come to America was Emanuel Sard, a Levantine diamond-broker of New York, Quintana's agent in America.

Now, as the October days passed without any report of Quintana's detention, Darragh, known as Hal Smith at Clinch's dump began to suspect that Quintana had already slid into America through the meshes of the police.

If so, this desperate international criminal could be expected at Clinch's under some guise or other, piloted thither by Emanuel Sard.

So Hal Smith, whose duty it was to wash dishes, do chores, and also to supply Clinch's with Mountain beef—or deer taken illegally—made it convenient to prowl every day in the vicinity of the Ghost Lake Road.

He was perfectly familiar with Emanuel Sard's squat features and parrot nose, having robbed Mr. Sard of Quintana's cipher and of $4,000 at pistol point. And one morning, while roving around the guide's quarters at Ghost Lake Inn, Smith beheld Sard himself on the hotel veranda, in company with the five strangers of foreign aspect.

During the midday dinner Smith, on pretense of inquiring for a guide's license, got a look at the inn ledger. Sard's signature was on it, followed by the names of Henri Picquet, Nicolas Salzar, Victor Georgiades, Harry Beck and Jose Sanchez. And Smith went back through the wilderness to Star Pond, convinced that one of these gentleman was Quintana, and the remainder, Quintana's gang, and that they were here to do murder if necessary in their remorseless quest of The Flaming Jewel. Two million dollars once had been offered for the flaming jewel, and had been refused.

CHAPTER II

Clinch's dump was the disposal plant in which collected the human sewage of the wilderness.

It being Saturday, the scum of the North Woods was gathering at Star Pond. A venison and chicken supper was promised—and a dance if any women appeared.

Jake Kloon had run in some Canadian hootch; Darragh, alias Hal Smith contributed too fat deer and Clinch cooked them. By 10 o'clock that morning many of the men were growing noisy; some were already drunk by noon. Shortly after midday dinner the first fight started—extinguished only after Clinch had beaten several of the backwoods aristocracy insensible.

Towering amid the wreck of battle, his light gray eyes a glitter, Clinch dominating swinging his iron fists.

When the combat ended and the fallen lay starkly where they fell, Clinch said in his pleasant and level voice:

"Take them out and stick their heads in the pond. And don't go for to get me mad boys, or I am liable to act rough."

They bore forth the sleepers for immersion in Star Pond. Clinch relighted his cigar and repeated the rulings which had caused the fracas:

"oYu gotta play square cards here or you don't play none in my house. No living thumb-nail can nick no cards in my place and get away with it. Three kings and two treys is better than three chickens and two eggs. If you don't like it, g'wan home."

He went out in his shirt sleeves to see how the knockouts were surviving, and met Hal Smith returning from the pond who reported progress toward consciousness. They walked back to the hotel together.

"Say young fella," said Clinch in his soft, agreeable way, "you want to keep your eyes peeled tonight."

"Why?"

"Well, there'll be a lot o'folks here. There'll be strangers, too. Don't forget the state troopers are looking for you.

They paused on the rough veranda in the hot October sunshine.

"Mike," suggested Smith carelessly, "wouldn't it pay you better to go straight?"

Clich's small gray eyes, which had been roaming over the prospect of lake and forest, focused on Smith's smiling features.

"I'll be out of a job if they ever land you," remarked Smith laughing.

"Who the hell are you anyway?" he asked. "I don't know. You stick up a man on the Ghost Lake road and hide out here when the State Troopers come after you. And now you ask me if it pays better to go straight. Why don't you go straight, if you think it pays?"

"I haven't got a daughter to worry about," explained mith. "If they get me it won't hurt anybody else."

A dull red tinge came out under Clinch's tan:

"Who asked you to worry about Eve?"

"She's a fine girl, that's all."

"You trying to make up to her?" he inquired gently.

"No. She has no use for me."

Clinch reflected, his cold tiger-gaze still fastened on Smith.

"You're right, Eve is a good girl. Some day I'll make a lady out of her," he said after a moment.

"She is one Clinch."

At that Clinch reddened heavily—the first finer emotion ever betrayed before Smith. He did not say anything for a few moments, but his grim mouth worked. Finally:

"I guess you was a gentleman, before you went crooked, Hal. You act up like you once was," he said. "Say, there's only one thing on God's earth I care about. You have guessed it too." He was off upon his dulling passion.

"Eve," nodded Smith.

"Sure. She isn't my flesh and blood. But it seems like she is more, even. I want she should be a lady. It's all I want. That dammed millionaire Harrod bust me. But he could not stop me giving Eve her schooling. And now all I'm living for it to be fixed so she can go to the city like a lady. I don't care how I make my money; all I want is to make it. And I am going to."

Smith nodded again.

Clinch, now obsessed with by his monomania went on with an oath:

"I can't make no money on the level after what Harold done to me. And I gotta fix up Eve. What the hell do you mean by asking me if it would pay to travel straight I dunno."

"I was only thinking of Eve. A lady is not supposed to have a crook for a father."

Clinch's gray eyes blazed for a moment then their menacing fire dulled died out into winter fixity.

"I wan't born a crook," he said. "I ain't got no choice. And don't worry, young fella; they ain't agoin' to get me."

"You can't go on beating the game forever, Clinch."

"I'm beating it—" he hesitated—"and it won't be so long either, before I turn over enough to let Eve live in the city like any lady, with her autymobile and her own butler and all her swell friends, in a big house like she is educated for—"

He broke off abruptly as a procession approached from the lake, escorting the battered gentry who now were able a wabble about a little.

One of them, a fox-faced trap thief named Earl Leverett, slunk hastily by as though expecting another kick from Clinch.

"G'wan inside, Earl, and act up right," said Clinch pleasantly. "You oughter have more sense than to start a fight in my place—you and Sid Hone and Harvey Chase. Go on in and behave."

He and Smith followed the procession of damaged ones into the house.

The big unpainted room where a bar had once been was blue with cheap cigar smoke; the air reeked with the stench of beer and spirits. A score or more shambling forest louts in the Gingy Saturday finery were gathered there playing cards, shooting craps, lolling around tables and tilting slopping glasses at one another.

Heavy pleasantries were exchanged with the victims of Clinchs ponderous fists as they re-entered the room from which they had been borne so recently, feet first.

"Now boys," said Clinch kindly, "act up like swell gents and behave friendly. And if any ladies come in for the chicken supper, why, gol dang it, we'll have a dance!"

AMERICAN TRACTORS PLOUGH RUSSIAN FIELDS, REPORT

By Associatd Press

Alexandrovosk, Russia, Oct. 5.—Town folks and peasants alike of this part of Southern Ukraine were scarcely able to believe their eyes recently when 25 American tractors with the ploughs attached were put to work in the fields near here to prepare thousands of acres for the fall planting.

Peasants of the Alexandrovosk district, one of the famine areas, had become discouraged because of lack of work animals and the summer's crop failure, but the arrival of the tractors gave them a new lease on life. In the pre-war days Alexandrovosk was the center of a thriving agricultural community, with many factories in operation turning out cultural machinery. But these implements were all horse-drawn, and the natives knew of nothing else. So when the queer looking tractors were set up in the fields and without being urged by cries or whip, began the task of ploughing, the peasants shook their heads and said such crawly things just could not last. But before many days the peasants had become tractor converts, and now most of them are hoping the day may come when they themselves will be able to own a steam horse for their fields.

The tractors and plows were brought here by the American Menonite Relief Organization, which is endeavoring to work out a plan for the upbuilding of Russian agriculture.

TRIFLING TRAVELOGS

Montreal

You Need a French Dictionary To Get Around Its Streets

By W. H. Porterfield

Montreal, the greatest city in all Canada, is declared to have a million inhabitants—if one counts the suburbs.

There are saloons licensed to sell beer, wines and cider, about 100 hotels, restaurants, cafes, clubs and steamboats licensed to the same thing with meals.

Until recently there were 200 government stores in Montreal at each one of which you could without any permit, purchase a bottle of whisky or gin. But this number recently was reduced to six.

You must not drink anything on the premises occupied by these stores. Therefore there is no treating. Neither are there bar flies or other old-time nuisances.

Bootlegging! Of course every motor road is watched day and night by dry agents and never think they do not make many important captures. One can hear more stories in the hotel lobbies here than I could write in the rest of my life and doubtless all of them true.

Plenty of people in Montreal speak English, but it is so hard to find them when you want 'em.

All the signs are in both languages, all official notices and proclamations, in trams, steam cars, on streets, parks etc., but if one ventures too far from the hotel, French is the only language heard, and in the hotel, employes are nearly all French Canadians.

Street names are practically all in French and as the street car Conductors are French as well, you may judge of the effect on the English or American visitor who wishes to get off at a given point.

I wandered for a mile down St. Catherine street last evening before I heard a word of English.

Residential as well as business architecture is French, especially in the older quarters of the city. Long rows of brick and stone houses face the curb with their forbidding fronts and dirty pasteboard signs in windows. Chambre a louer, or Chambre garnie louer, for nearly every French Canadian is ready to increase his income by renting a furnished room.

In the cheaper restaurants the menu cards ignore English entirely and many of the smaller stores and shops treat similarly the language of the empire.

Americans who have never studied the British empire system can have not the faintest idea of the liberty even license, that exists within the empire.

It is interesting to note that while in Quebec the French population demand that their language be taught FIRST in the public schools, that all official proclamations be published in the French language and that the church schools be supported in part by the state, that these same French Canadians on our side of the line, merge into our civilization almost at the start and never so much as dream of asking any of these privileges, knowing of course, that they would be laughed at.

Montreal is big and foreign and interesting and beautiful with her 12 parks, her 32 miles of waterfront, her largest cold storage plant in the world her six great steamship lines, her harbor 1000 miles from salt water, her wonderful summer climate, her attractive residence districts, her splendid motor roads and her biggest and oldest brewery in America.

The great fur stores intrigue one too, and I never wanted to be rich more than when I visited the biggest fur store in the world today.

I saw one Canadian mink coat (and I still think Canadian mink the finest fur in the world), which the man said I could have for $1850. He said that he would guarantee to fit madame and all she'd have to do would be to send her exact measurement and he would guarantee every hair in the coat.

But the hardest things to pass in this town are the French patisserie shops. You just hang around the windows and wonder if a bite would hurt very much.

Oh, I must tell you one funny story just off St. Catherine street is a little chinese laundry. I saw the letters and the proprietor and I guess I know a Chinaman when I see him.

Well like a fool I thought all Chinese came from California, so I stepped up to this bird and greeted him with: Good evening this is a long way from California, isn't it? And that grinning Celestial bower with all the grace of a Lady Roland and replied, "Mais oui, monsieur, mais je ne parle pas l'Anglais."

Good night! Can you beat that?

Some of England's most ambitious and successful business women are members of British nobility.

The Countess of Clonmell has opened a laundry she calls The White Elephant in the most aristocratic section of London. To keep her business running smoothly she frequently goes in to the workrooms herself to superintend.

Lady Poynter, wife of Sir Ambrose Poynter, the architect, and a famous beauty, is now an interior decorator. Her shop is in Beauchamp Place, London.

Countess Annesley has gone into the millinery business. She has a shop in London and takes an active part in serving customers.

SQUARE DEAL FOR 32,000 CHILDREN IS AIM OF PROPOSED UNIFORM LAWS COVERING ILLEGITIMACY

Washington, Oct. 4—A square deal for the 32,000 children who are born out of wedlock in the United States each year!

That is the aim of a proposed uniform state law covering illegitimacy.

Prof. Ernest Freund of the University of Chicago, and chairman of the committee on law standardization for the United States Children's Bureau, is a leader in this move to lessen the burden of both the unwedded mother and her offspring.

The proposed law places upon both parents of a child born out of wedlock the obligation of education and support.

"This plan," says Prof. Freund, "comes as a result of our feeling that it is both impracticable, as well as beyond the scope of congressional legislation for the federal government to support these children. Such protection must be insured by state laws.

"Our committee has made its recommendations, and commissioners of all states in turn have brought their findings from the report to their respective law-making bodies.

"The law in question is not so drastic as the Castberg law of Norway, which provides that every child is made the legitimate offspring of the father.

"Rather, it seeks primarily to secure a guarantee of financial support for the child, with the state standing guard, to see that the father continually acknowledges his responsibility.

"At present, too many states permit easy exit for the father, following a compromise payment out of court, and leaving the mother of the state to care for the child in later years.

"The proposed law will make a nonpayment of money for support a criminal offense.

"No specified amount will be permitted as now countenanced in most localities, but the payment in each case shall be fixed by the court and will be continuous during the dependency of the child."

There is a decided difference in the way various states at present handle the situation.

Minnesota has done much through the establishment of welfare stations through which the work of protecting unnamed babies is carried on.

In Tennessee the father of an illegitimate child may be required to pay not to exceed $40 the first year, $30 the second, $20 the third, and from then on the court may dispose of the child as it deems best.

In Alabama the court may order the father to pay not to exceed $50 a year for the support and education of the child.

Prof. Freund states that the one main thing to be considered was the future of the child. Our work must be a benefit and not a hindrance.

And one of the main things to do is to bar tight the loopholes existing in present laws through which the father is permitted to escape.

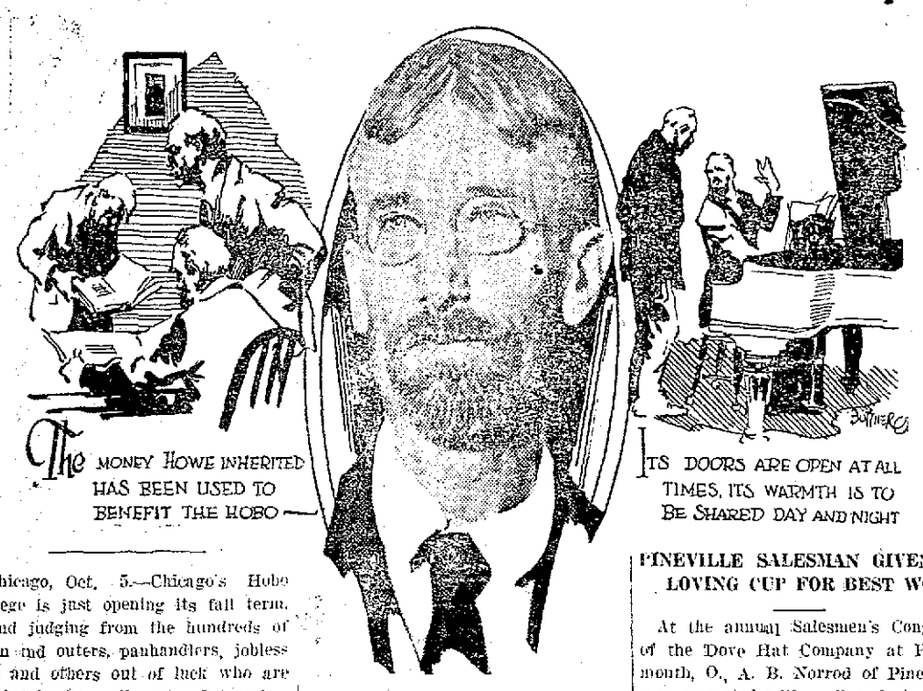
"Hobo College" Draws Thousands; World Betterment Plan is Unique



The MONEY HOWE INHERITED HAS BEEN USED TO BENEFIT THE HOBO
ITS DOORS ARE OPEN AT ALL TIMES, ITS WARMTH IS TO BE SHARED DAY AND NIGHT

JAMES EADES HOWE, FOUNDER OF CHICAGO'S HOBO COLLEGE.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Chicago's Hobo College is just opening its fall term.

And judging from the hundreds of down and outers, panhandlers, jobless men and others out of luck who are pouring in from all parts of America, this year's enrollment will set new records.

As an institution of learning for the man down and out, where he not only can study but be warm all winter discuss his own problems and review his ramblings, the Hobo College, was established 20 years ago by James Eades Howe, millionaire hobo. Since then it has become a recognized institution in Chicago. Artists, clerics, sociologists and even society leaders have from time to time taken part in its work.

Howe, son of wealthy parents, early became interested in humanitarian work. In his youth, he learned the tramp's psychology, through personal contact with them. At Harvard and Oxford, he studied with a view to bettering humanity.

The hobo and through him the world can be improved by education, Howe holds. The money he inherited, therefore, went to founding the Hobo College, counterparts of which have been found in other cities.

Students of the college attend during the winter months. In the summer they disperse to the harvest fields to other migratory seasonal occupations, or to the hobo life.

Three nights a week will be given to instruction this winter. Industrial law, economics and health are the courses offered, each handled by competent instructors. There is also a box at favorite operatic or theatrical attractions—also, free meals certain evenings. These meals can always be counted upon to swell attendance at the classes.

The once successful man, the man highly educated who cannot seem to a chance and the vagrant from choice find this niche, the boy who never had all are enrolled at the college. Some find mental stimulus and a means of becoming useful citizens again; others find in the institutions its comforts, free from flop-house atmosphere. Its doors are always open, its warmth is continuous, its piano, is free to all and there is always a plentiful supply of books and magazines.

PINEVILLE SALESMAN GIVEN LOVING CUP FOR BEST WORK

At the annual Salesmen's Congress of the Dove Hat Company at Portsmouth, O., A. B. Norrod of Pineville, was presented with a silver loving cup in recognition that he led the force in sales during the season, according to a report of the convention in the Portsmouth Daily Times.
